Description :

Prsentation de l'diteurMiss Buncle's Book, Persephone Book No. 81, is about a woman who writes a novel about Silverstream, the village where she lives, under the pseudonym John Smith, and is then involved in the comedy as her neighbours try to discover the identity of the viper in their midst. Eventually she is forced to leave, and having married her publisher Arthur Abbott, moves to his house in Hampstead. The Abbotts then move out of London, which is when Miss Buncle Married, begins. Early on Arthur thinks: But I really hope, in a way, that [Barbara] wont want to write ... because this place is delightful simply charming and if she starts writing about our neighbours, we shall most probably have to leave Wandlebury just as she had to leave Silverstream in a hurry.Prsentation de l'diteurMiss Buncle's Book, Persephone Book No. 81, is about a woman who writes a novel about Silverstream, the village where she lives, under the pseudonym John Smith, and is then involved in the comedy as her neighbours try to discover the identity of the viper in their midst.
